Brains Are Built Through Experiences!

700 to 1000 new neural connections are formed each second in the infant brain.

Caregivers who are responsive to a child's signals through "serve and return" interactions facilitate healthy brain architecture.

A child without supportive adults who experiences "toxic stress" can develop weakened brain architecture.

Stimuli like art, music, physical play, math and language, play a huge role in the formation of new synaptic connections.

--> The theory of Multiple Intelligences was developed by Dr. Howard Gardner, Professor of Education at Harvard University.

--> It suggests that the traditional notion of intelligence based on I.Q. testing, is far too limited. Instead, Dr. Gardner proposes 7 different intelligences to account for a broader range of human potential in children and adults.

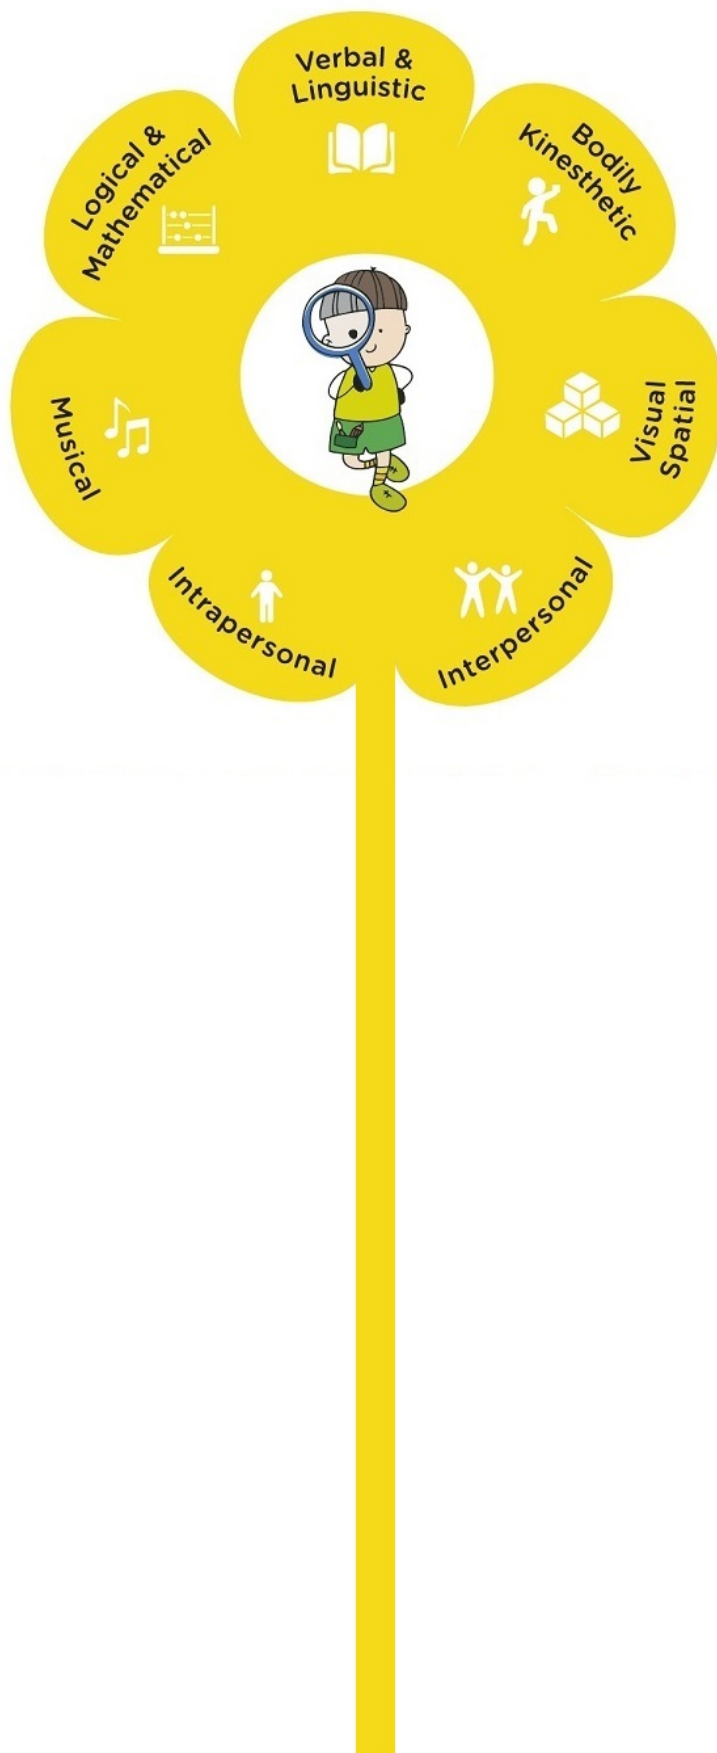

Theory of Multiple Intelligences

At Doodle, a team of creative & enthusiastic educators and caretakers work together with families to provide a multi dimensional fun learning environment.

Doodle approach is based on neuroscience research on how children learn, play & grow, nurturing children to become confident & lifelong learners.

We have a systematic process of child assessment based on daily observations and we regularly communicate this to parents through various online & offline channels.

How a Child Learns: 7 Multiple Intelligences

What a Child Learns: 5 Skills

Where a Child Learns: 6 Learning Centres

We enhance the learning style of each child by creating learning areas to facilitate active and experiential learning.
